PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 46 (Virginia) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 46 (Virginia) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

VIRGINIA

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—Virginia, one of the Thirteen Original States, included, in 1790, the areas now constituting the States of Kentucky and West Virginia. The area of the State was reduced in 1791 by the formation of the District of Columbia and in 1792 by the admission of Kentucky into the Union as a separate State; the area was increased in 1846 by the retrocession of the part of the District of Columbia south of the Potomac but was further reduced in 1863 by the admission of West Virginia into the Union as a separate State. In 1866 two additional counties (Berkeley and Jefferson) were annexed to West Virginia, leaving the boundaries of Virginia as at present. The population of Virginia on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 3,318,680. The State has a land area of 39,893 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 83.2 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 67.1 in 1940. Among the States, Virginia ranked fifteenth in population and thirty-fifth in land area.

The present area of Virginia had a population of 691,737 in 1790 (table 1). In 1950, 160 years later, the population of the State was about five times as large. The rate of growth for the State in each decade of the period 1790 to 1930 was below that for the Nation as a whole. In the last two decades, however, the reverse has been true. The gain of 640,907 between 1940 and 1950 represented an increase of 23.9 percent over the 2,677,773 persons enumerated in 1940. Both the numerical increase and rate of gain for the decade were the highest in the history of the State.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landlords, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of Virginia comprised 1,560,115 persons, or 47.0 percent of the population of the State (table 1). The urban population was living in the 78 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban fringes of the Norfolk-Portsmouth, Richmond, and Roanoke Urbanized Areas and the Virginia part of the urban fringe of the Washington, D. C., Urbanized Area. More than three-fifths of the urban population of the State was living in urbanized areas (table 2).

The 1950 rural population of Virginia numbered 1,758,565 persons, or 53.0 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 123,034 persons, or 7.0 percent, were living in the 49 incorporated and 30 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,<sup>1</sup> and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprised all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Virginia consisted of the following components: (1) The 1,200,495 inhabitants of the 62 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; (2) the 87,900 inhabitants of the 16 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; and (3) the 271,720 persons living in unincorporated territory included in the urban fringes of the Norfolk-Portsmouth, Richmond, and Roanoke Urbanized Areas and the Virginia part of the urban fringe of the Washington, D. C., Urbanized Area. Arlington County was urban under special rule according to the old urban definition. The urban population under the old definition, therefore, consisted of the population of the 62 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and the 135,449 inhabitants of Arlington County. The population of Arlington County was classified as urban according to the new definition because the entire county was included in the Virginia part of the Washington, D. C., Urbanized Area. The gain in the urban population of Virginia which resulted from the change in definition was 224,171, that is, the 87,900 persons living in the 16 unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and the 136,271 persons living in unincorporated territory other than Arlington County included in the urban fringes of the urbanized areas wholly or partially in the State.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1790 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the urban population of Virginia nearly quadrupled between 1900 and 1950, rising from 340,067 to 1,335,944 (table 1). The largest numerical increase over the 50-year period came between 1940 and 1950, when the urban population increased by 391,269, or 41.4 percent. The rate of increase equaled that experienced in the decade from 1910 to 1920. All 20 of the cities of 10,000 or more gained population between 1940 and 1950, with the rates of increase ranging from 7.1 percent for Danville to 84.3 percent for Alexandria (table 4). Over the 50-year period the population living in urban places of 10,000 or more rose from 261,980 to 1,134,483 (table 3). The proportion of the population of the State living in urban territory more than doubled between 1900 and 1950, increasing from 18.3 to 40.3 percent.

The rural population of Virginia, which was 1,514,117 in 1900, increased to 1,982,736 in 1950 (table 1). The largest numerical increase as well as the most rapid rate of growth came in the decade 1940 to 1950, when the rural population increased by 249,638, or 14.4 percent. The proportion of the population of Virginia living in rural territory declined from 81.7 percent in 1900 to 59.7 percent in 1950.

Counties and independent cities.—There were 100 counties and 27 independent cities in Virginia in 1950. The counties ranged in size from Craig with a population of 3,452 to Arlington with a population of 135,449 (table 5). The independent cities, which have the status of counties, ranged in size from Buena Vista with a population of 5,214 to Richmond with a population of 230,310. Sixty-two of the counties increased in population between 1940 and 1950. The population of Warwick County more than quadrupled over the 10 years. The population of four additional counties, Arlington, Fairfax, Norfolk, and Princess Anne, more than doubled. Of the independent cities, all but Clifton Forge increased in population. The most rapid rate of increase was experienced by Falls Church, which nearly tripled in population over the 10-year period.

The rates of increase for the other independent cities were from 1.2 percent for Hampton to 84.3 percent for Alexandria.

Colonial Heights, Falls Church, and Waynesboro became independent cities between 1940 and 1950. The population of these cities for 1940 and 1930 was included in the population of the counties in which they were located. In the presentation of the figures for independent cities in table 5, the 1940 and 1930 figures for these three cities are shown, but they are not to be added in with the population of the counties and other independent cities to make up the population of the State.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in Virginia are the magisterial districts. The incorporated towns form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of each town and unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the minor civil division in which it is located. When a town or unincorporated place lies in two or more minor civil divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 in the appropriate counties and minor civil divisions, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and the 1950 Census in the boundaries of areas listed are shown in the notes to table 6. For changes in the boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 1104-1107, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—In 1950 there were 223 places in Virginia incorporated as cities or towns and 46 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. There were 1,330,005 persons living in the incorporated places, 129,510 of whom were in the 161 places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. Of the 134,350 inhabitants of the unincorporated places, 46,450 were in the 30 places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places other than independent cities ranged in size from McDowell town with a population of 107 to Pulaski town with a population of 9,202.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census includes all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There were three urbanized areas entirely within Virginia and one partly within the State. The first three areas, the Norfolk-Portsmouth, Richmond, and Roanoke Urbanized Areas, had 385,111, 257,995, and 106,682 inhabitants, respectively. There were 231,732 persons living in the Virginia part of the Washington, D. C., Urbanized Area. Of the 981,520 persons in the State in urbanized areas, 615,783 were in the four central cities—Norfolk, Portsmouth, Richmond, and Roanoke—and 365,737 were in the urban fringes. The urban fringes had a population of 94,017 in three cities and three towns and 271,720 in the unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

Each urbanized area contains at least one city with 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas.

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.
2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely spaced street pattern.
3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.
4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within  $1\frac{1}{4}$  miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying areas within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.

URBANIZED AREA MAPS

The three urbanized areas located entirely in Virginia, for which statistics are shown in table 9, are depicted in the following maps. The shaded areas, in combination, comprise the urbanized area. To assist in locating the exact external boundaries of the area, each boundary feature (street segment, political boundary, or other) has been assigned a number. The boundary segments thus numbered are shown on the map and the features to which they apply are presented in the following key.
